LIFE ON BOARD A DESTROYER.

There is nothing of the 'feather bed' about life on board a destroyer, says Mr.
F. T. Jans in The New Penny Magazine.
It is a hard life, demanding from the officers a high quality of nerve, endurance, courage, and resources—a life for which all men are not equally fitted. As a fine training school for officers, it is undoubtedly a best, possible, and a very large number of officers now pass through the instructional flotilla, being sent there simply to gain experience of the handling of ships and forming swift decisions.
But outside and beyond this there is growing up a type of officer that so far as possible sticks to destroyers and such like craft, and begs the authorities to keep him there. More often than not this sort of officer is of the wild and rascally order, devil-may-care from top to bottom, and he does not really care whether his destroyer service is dangerous or not. He understands that in war it will be very dangerous, that very little quarter is likely to be given to torpedo craft in battle, so that peace risks if they exist seem very trifling to him. Ideas on board a destroyer permeate downwards, and most of the crews of destroyers acquire the same kind of sentiment.
The work means extra pay, and a relaxation of a good deal of routine, which to the average Handy Man compensates for any amount of danger and minor unpleasantnesses, such as sea-sickness and so on.

THE LEGAL LIABILITIES OF AN ENGINEER.

Engineering gives an interesting outline of the laws which most nearly affect the engineer and the architect, and first points out that the engineer is a member of one of the learned professions who cannot be made liable for a mere want of skill in the carrying out of some undertaking. An attorney does not undertake to win every cause; nor does a physician bind himself to cure all his patients. In the same way, an engineer of moderate ability cannot be expected to use

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

We publish in this issue

THE P. W. D. the full report of the Commission appointed by H.E. Sir H. A.

Blake to enquire into the personnel and working of the Public Works Department. The report speaks for itself, and we take it the public will agree with the decision of the Commission that the Department is seriously underequipped and that it must be equipped as speedily as possible to enable it to overtake the orinary and extraordinary public works in progress in the Colony. This Commission, it is well to remember, was the outcome of certain statements made at the time of the deplorable collapse of houses in Cochrane Street last year. It was then stated that not only was the P. W. D. staff unable to overtake its ordinary duties but that it was practically impossible for it to prevent jerry building in the Colony, and as this was, at the moment, the principal matter before the public it was suggested that the Department should have the staff to enable it to cope with the extraordinary amount of new building and reconstruction in progress, and thus safeguard the public. The additions now proposed, taken in conjunction with the new laws that are being brought forward, should help to remove this source of public danger to life. The proposal to put Executive Engineers in charge of the Water and Drainage Sub-Departments is a wise one. It should lead not only to greater efficiency in detail but to more continuity of general policy.

Were the subject of a popularly-elected Sanitary Board or Municipal Council before the public, it might be worth while to consider how far either of these bodies should be entrusted with waterworks and drainage works; but as it is more likely that a Sanitary Department will be created and the Sanitary Board disappear altogether (since its existence sets up a semblance of dual responsibility) the next best arrangement is to follow the course suggested by the Commission. The rearrangement of duties following upon the additions to the staff should leave the Director of Public Works free to devote himself to the supervision of the various schemes in progress and the initiation of new public works; and if this secures for the Colony the better housing out of Kowloon, the provision of an adequate water supply ahead of the Colony's steadily increasing requirements, the resumption of overcrowded areas in the city of Victoria as opportunity occurs and the creation of open spaces, the laying out of a European Reservation, rendered so necessary by the encroachment of the Chinese working classes and the attendant dangers from fire and disense, the construction of proper roads, the opening up of new building sites and the speaker revision and sanction of building plans, then the price paid by a greater outlay on the Public Works Department will not be too large. At the same time, as was hinted in the questions Mr Sheehan addressed to the various witnesses, the public is entitled to expect a full day's work from the various members of the staff, and this could be ensured by a Governmental or Departmental regulation bearing on this particular subject.

Another point raised by one of the witnesses is the method of promotion adopted in the service. It is matter of public notoriety that there are drains in this Department just as there are in private business life, and it is therefore detrimental to the efficiency of the service that promotion should go by seniority irrespective of merit. There peers, and the Legislature will be guided by this in its votes of money for public improvements. It will lead to greater efficiency, if the staff are entrusted with the supervision of the larger engineering and architectural work. The report may suggest other considerations to engineers and architects; but regarded from the standpoint of the general public it seems to us to be very sensible and practical, and, if acted upon, calculated to bring the Public Works Department up to the increased requirements of the Colony.

THE EARL OF death of the Earl of KIMBERLEY. Kimberley, one of the most prominent statesmen of the times. The deceased Earl was born in 1826 and had a distinguished college career. In 1846, he succeeded his grandfather as third Baron Wodehouse. His public career commenced in 1852, when he accepted the post of Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. Four years later, he was British Envoy at the Russian capital.

In 1863, he was despatched on a special mission to the north of Europe, with the view of obtaining some settlement of the Schleswig-Holstein question, and, in the following year, he was appointed Under-Secretary for India.

He then succeeded the late Earl of Carlisle in the Lord Lieutenantcy of Ireland resigning that post on the fall of Lord Russell's second administration in 1866, and at the same time being raised to the earldom of Kimberley.

His Lordship was a prominent public

ministries. In February, 1878, he was nominated Chairman of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the Working of the Penal Servitude

Acts. For two different periods, he filled the important office of Secretary of State for the Colonies, was on two occasions Secretary of State for Shipping.
